

Our picture by Christopher Yorke-Edwards shows Katisha, played by Kirsty Wooldridge, catching her prey Nanki-Poo, played by Nick Court.

It's hot entertainment

AS winter draws closer its hotting up at the theatre.

Hot Mikado is being brought to Chelmsford's Civic Theatre by the Chelmsford Amateur Operatic and Dramatic Society.

The show, based on the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta The Mikado, is set in the 1940s and swings and sizzles to build on the uproarious comedy of the original.

It runs from September 29 to October 4.

The play is the society's second production to be directed by former member Jeremy Tustin, who has now gone on to become an accomplished director.

For advance booking until September 17 telephone 01245 609568 and from September 22 contact the Civic Theatre box office on 01245 606505.